The Zwick Center for Food and Resource Policy hired two outstanding Postdoctoral researchers - Rebecca Boehm and Shaheer Burney for the current calendar year.

Rebecca Boehm (PhD) has a joint appointment at the Rudd Center for Food Policy and Obesity and the Zwick Center. Rebecca earned her Doctorate from Tufts University. She concentrates her research at the intersection of diet, nutrition and environmental sustainability. She is also collaborating with extension of local foods.

Shaheer Burney (PhD) earned his Doctorate from the University of Kentucky in May 2017. Additionally, he also holds an MBA from The University of Louisville, Kentucky. His research focuses on food policy, household consumption behavior, and obesity. He will also engage in extension activities to supplement his research appointment as well as teach an agribusiness course in spring 2018.

Charles Towe was promoted to Associate Professor with Tenure. Prior to UConn, Charles was an assistant professor at the University of Maryland and an ag economist at ERS/USDA. He is nationally known for his research in environmental economics and land use and is the current Richard DelFavero Fellow.

The visit was hosted by Professor Boris Bravo-Ureta with support from the project “Productivity, Growth, Irrigation Efficiency, and Climate Variability in U.S. Agriculture: Empirical Analyses with Emerging Methodologies”, funded by USDA/NIFA.

Audrey Folta in the spotlight

Our student– Audrey Folta was featured in the UConn CAHNR news blog. Audrey describes her experience as an ARE major after initially starting out as an Environmental Studies major. She served as secretary of the Resource Economics Club during the academic year 16-17 and aspires to assume presidency in the forthcoming year. She has also been actively involved in promoting the ARE major to fellow Undergraduates and has represented ARE at career fairs. Looking ahead, she plans on applying for Doctoral programs in Economics and Business Structure.

In Fond Memory: Bernie Dzielinski

UConn CAHNR and Departments of Extension and Agricultural and Resource Economics lost a wonderful alumni, mentor, advocate and friend. Bernie was associated with the Fairfield County Farm Bureau and also served as CT Farm Bureau state Director. He was also bestowed upon the Outstanding Alumni Award from the University of Connecticut Agricultural Alumni Association in 1996.

Professor John Bovay will be presented with an award for outstanding article in the Journal of Agricultural and Resource Economics for their article, “GM Labeling Regulation by Plebiscite: An Analysis of Voting on Proposition 37 in California” at the Western Agricultural Association (WAEA) meeting to be held at Lake Tahoe July 9-11.

ARE hosts three visiting students in AY16-17

This year, ARE hosted three doctoral students for a period of one year starting Fall 2016. Ms. Shen Cheng is from China Agricultural University, Mr. Zhongmin is from Renmin University of China and Mr. Hiroaki Ueda (not in picture) is from the University of Tokyo, Japan.
Success Story: Andrew Markus & Jesse Silkoff

UConn Alumni Jesse Silkoff and Andrew Markus who graduated with a degree in Applied and Resource Economics in 2011 have found great success in their joint venture—MyTennisLessons and FitnessTrainer.com. The e-business helps match potential clients with tennis coaches and fitness trainers by Geographic proximity. During their time at UConn, they won the top-prize worth $10,000 after entering a business plan competition at the School of Business; which subsequently gave their business a financial fillip. They currently run the business out of Austin, Texas and have found great success in this online venture. They duly credit their UConn education and ARE faculty for their immense contribution towards their business.
