

Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics

Spring 2018 Seminar Series

Co-sponsored by the Zwick Center for Food and Resource Policy

All regular seminars are on Wednesdays at 3:00-4:15pm in WBY 132 unless otherwise noted

January 22, 11am-12pm, WBY 304

Job candidate: Meilin Ma, University of California, Davis

Market Concentration, Market Shares, and Retail Food Prices: Evidence from the U.S. Women, Infants and Children Program

January 23, 10:30-11:30am, WBY 304

Job candidate: Stephen Morgan, Michigan State University

Stakeholder Comments, Contributions, and Compliance: Evidence from a Public Goods Experiment

January 24, 3:15-4:15pm, WBY 132

Job candidate: Sandro Steinbach, Swiss Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich

Demand Similarity and Foreign Direct Investment in the Food and Beverage Industry

February 7

David Simon, University of Connecticut, Dept. of Economics

Traffic Pollution and Child Academic Achievement

February 21

Bryan Hurlburt, Wholesome Wave, Senior Vice President of Program Operations

Empowering Under-Served Consumers to Make Healthier Food Choices

March 7

William Masters, Tufts University, Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy, Department of Economics

Measuring the (Un)affordability of Healthy Diets: New Price Indexes for the Cost of Meeting International Nutrition Standards

March 21

Thomas Sproul, University of Rhode Island, Dept. of Environmental & Natural Resource Economics

Measurement Error in Risk Preference Elicitations

April 4

Resul Cesur, University of Connecticut School of Business

TBD

April 18

Jamie Mullins, Dept. of Resource Economics, University of Massachusetts Amherst

Climate, Migration, and Labour Market Opportunities: Evidence from Temperature Shocks in the United States

Contact: Tatiana Andreyeva, tatiana.andreyeva@uconn.edu

Updated 01/15/18